We Salute Britain in Her Big Moment Duke Gets a Ride

I confess there were moments in the weeks - long outburst of Great Britain's coronation when the proceedings became monotonous - until they finally put the crown on Elizabeth's head this morning in London's Westminster Abbey.

But in the actual moment of coronation an American realized the significance of this solemn event for our fellow English-speaking nation. Realization broke through when the London correspondents and commentators started listing all the countries which bear allegiance to the flag of England - representing about 600 million people.

Kingship - or queenship in this instance - is something an American doesn't take kindly to, but in the British instance we recognize we are looking at a mere symbol of government, not the government itself. The British throne has no more to do with the actual function of British government than a radio announcer declaiming a speech someone else has written.

And that precisely is what the occupant of the British throne does - she reads, except for the non-political coronation address, a speech dictated by the prevailing majority in parliament, as represented by the prime minister. Currently it is Winston Churchill who furnishes Her Majesty with the words from the throne; but when the Labor party was in power it was Clement Attlee, Labor's prime minister, who wrote the text which Elizabeth's father read to the world.

This, therefore, despite all the trappings of throne-room and coronation, is as great a democracy as our own - plus the glamor of a handsome young matron wearing the world's oldest crown.

America today salutes Britain - an ancient kingdom which turned into a democracy and, despite world-wide problems, has made a go of it.

SHE BE

Asheville (N. C.) Citizen

The question was: Should the Duke ride at the side of the Queen on the Coronation Day procession? Yes, says Elizabeth, who had to make the ruling herself because the Duke of Edinburgh has not yet been given the Title of Prince Consort which would entitle him automatically to the front seat. Along with the rest of the male persuasion, we draw a sigh (sigh) of relief.

How often has the little woman said: "Turnford, you get on the back seat, and Mabel will ride with me. I'm driving, of course." That could have happened to the Duke. But it didn't and so a possible precedent has been established. The male subhead of the family has a royal right to the front seat, and maybe even he will be allowed to say: "The light is green now, dear." Or "Remember to put out your hand when you turn." We're not talking about Queen Elizabeth but about the Queen Bee - and in every family she be.

Draft Takes Eight From Hempstead

Eight men from Hempstead County were sent to Little Rock this morning for induction into the U. S. Armed Services. Included:

Cherry, Legislators Inspect Prison

LITTLE ROCK (AP) - Gov. Cherry and representatives of the penitentiary, Board and the Legislative Council today inspected the Tucker Prison Farm.

Cherry said yesterday he "just wanted to see how things were operating."

Tomorrow Cherry will meet with the Parole Board for a discussion of "personnel matters." He declined to say yesterday if he would seek the dismissal of W. P. Ball who was named parole director during the term of former Gov. Ben Laney.

In other parole matters yesterday, Cherry said he had revoked the furlough of Lester Golden, convicted Chicot County gambler and operator.

Cherry said he made the revocation on the recommendation of Circuit Judge John Golden, no relative of Lester, who said in a letter that Lester had been drinking heavily.

A. Whitlow, pastor, and Earl Bailey, musical director.

C of C Awaits Definite Action of SPG Issue

"The Board of Directors of the Hope Chamber of Commerce had a regular meeting in the Chamber office Monday afternoon. The possibilities of an Ordnance Testing installation was discussed at length. A committee previously appointed to contact industries in the Proving Ground—Industrial Area. The results of a poll of a large number of business people were discussed. It was felt that satisfactory arrangements could be made with the industries. The poll indicated that a fair majority of business people favor the Proving Ground."

"The Chamber had officially contacted the Ordnance Department through Congressman Harris and learned that the former Southwestern Proving Ground has been under study by ordinance and is under study at this time, in the event of full mobilization, but there is no immediate plan to establish another Ordnance Testing installation in this area at this time. Therefore, due to the lack of any official information to the Chamber from either Army Ordnance or from our Congressman and Senators as to any definite plans for another Proving Ground installation in the area formerly occupied by the Hope Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors voted to continue to handle information concerning the Proving Ground, both pro and con, but to await more definite information from Army Ordnance before taking any positive action."

"In other action, the Chamber Board voted to jointly sponsor a luncheon with Hamilton Moses as speaker with the Kiwanis Club on Tuesday, June 23. In charge of these arrangements are Guy Basye, Jim LaCrosse, Vincent Foster, and Frank Boglas."

"The Board also voted to postpone indefinitely the Annual Banquet meeting, which was scheduled in March, but was postponed at that time. Those people holding tickets for the banquet may redeem them at full value at the Chamber office."

"The resignations of C. C. Lewis and Judge Lyle Brown were received and accepted by the Board. Kenneth Ambrose and Talbot Field were appointed by the Board of Directors to fill the unexpired terms of those resigned directors. The terms expire December 31, 1954."

Phone Co-ops to Air Territories

LITTLE ROCK, Mo. — Seventy-three Arkansas telephone companies and co-operatives have been asked to provide the Arkansas Public Service Commission with detailed information for allocation of territories.

Rhee Promises Cooperation With the U. S.

By ROBERT TUCKMAN
AND BILL SHINN

SEOUL, Mo. — President Syngman Rhee said today South Korea will "co-operate with the U. S. at any cost" but declared he will insist to the end on withdrawal of Chinese forces from North Korea after an armistice.

Rhee said he had received a three-point message from President Eisenhower, but refused to disclose its contents.

The 78-year-old leader's statement came on the heels of a report from Washington that he had proposed to Eisenhower a mutual defense pact plus substantial U. S. financial and military aid as South Korea's price for accepting Allied truce terms.

"Out of gratitude to the U. S., common sense and wisdom requires that we co-operate with the U. S. at any cost. We must accept anything the U. S. President wants, but allowing the Chinamen to stay in our country is similar to accepting a death sentence."

Although Eisenhower's message to Rhee was cloaked in secrecy, Washington sources said it stressed these three points:

1. The U. S. will not be deterred from concluding an armistice on what it regards as honorable terms.
2. The security of U. N. forces in Korea must be the determining factor in the truce talks.
3. The U. S. continues ready to support the South Korean government.

Saying he is in a "very difficult position" Rhee did not elaborate on his statement indicating South Korea's bitter opposition to the latest U. N. truce proposal may be softening.

Only Monday, Prime Minister Pyun Yung Tai threatened a break with the Allies because of what he called the U. N. Command's "sellout" to the Communists.

Pentecost Revival Starts Tonight

Evangelist Richard Blair will begin a revival at the First Pentecostal Church at 4th and Ferguson Streets Tuesday night, June 2, starting at 7:45.

The Rev. Mr. Blair will be assisted by his wife who plays the accordion and piano while he plays the bass violin. Special music will be held at each service.

Contends Old Law Bans Court Ruling

LITTLE ROCK, Mo. — The Crittenden County Bar Association contends that a constitutional amendment forbids the Arkansas Supreme Court from requiring lawyers to join a "labor union."

The Association made the statement in a brief filed yesterday in support of its request that the Court revoke an order that would force all Arkansas lawyers to join land support a state-wide bar organization.

Caddo Firm Explains Why It Left Hope

The following letter covering the circumstances under which Caddo Machinery company withdrew from the Hope manufacturing field has been received by Mayor John L. Wilson, Jr.:

Hon. John Wilson, Jr., Mayor of Hope, Arkansas.

Dear sir: This letter is to thank the people of the City of Hope for the fine cooperation and many courtesies extended the Caddo Machinery Company during the period we operated at the Southwestern Proving Ground. I would sincerely recommend Hope to any prospective industry.

Originally we purchased our building at Hope to tear it down and erect it in the Shreveport area. We stopped these plans after George Peck and Vincent Foster encouraged us to operate the plant at Hope rather than the Shreveport area. To induce us to do this they gave two years free use of the ground under and surrounding the building. These two men wanted to keep the payroll in Hope.

This offer prompted our operating in Hope the past years although the plant was temporary. We wish to also thank these gentlemen for their generous offer, their willingness to extend the time as long as we wanted the property and other favors.

In the past summer we decided to permanently locate our plant in Washok, Texas, not only for economic reasons but also because of it being in the Shreveport area and nearer to our type of manufacturers and clients. The continuing location at Hope was out because of this situation. Although we regretted to leave Hope you can readily see we had to get nearer our market.

In appreciation of the cooperation of your City and Foster and Peck we have turned over our building to these men with authority for them to deal with any industry which might need this building. If terms are needed in the purchase of the property we will make them available to responsible people. Hope this offer is of some help in getting a firm to replace ours, I am, Yours truly,

J. C. PITTMAN

County 4-H Club Dress Revue Set Tuesday, June 23

Plans have been completed for the County 4-H Club Dress Revue to be held Tuesday morning, June 23, at 9:30 a. m. according to Lorraine Blackwood, Home Demonstration Agent. All 4-H Club girls currently enrolled in clothing are eligible to enter. Winners in the county revue will represent Hempstead County at the State 4-H Club Camp in Fayetteville July 20-24.

Divisions in the revue are: School Costume, made of any washable material; This includes such garments as a one-piece dress or two-piece outfits which might be a jumper or skirt with a blouse or jacket.

Best Dress, a street length dress of cotton, linen, wool, rayon or silk fabric, suitable for parties or other social occasions.

Play Togs, made of cotton, rayon or other suitable fabric; These outfits may be for summer or winter such as slacks with shirt or blouse; shorts with blouses or skirts or any other suitable combinations of garments.

Work outfit, made of cotton or other washable fabrics designed for work in the home or out of doors. This group includes such garments as culottes, coveralls, slacks, aprons, or dresses.

McMath May Be Opponent of McClellan

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Arkansas Democrat said today that former Gov. Sid McMath will run for the U. S. Senate seat held by John McClellan if he is assured of "a good segment of support."

McClellan, the senior Democratic senator from Arkansas, must seek re-election in next summer's Democratic primaries. McMath could not be reached for comment. His law partner and former executive secretary, Henry Woods, said McMath had not arrived at their Little Rock office. The telephone line to the ex-governor's farm home near Sheridan was out of order.

The Democrat quoted McMath as saying: "If there are enough people who really want me to run against McClellan, I will do it, but I want to be sure of at least a good segment of support before I enter such a race."

McMath admitted that he has lost most of the support he had when he was governor, and said that he thought "big business probably would be against me" in a race for the Senate. Then, he added: "You know it doesn't take as much money to run for the Senate as it does for governor."

Rosenbergs to Die on June 18

NEW YORK (AP) — U. S. Marshal William A. Carroll announced today that condemned atom spies Julius and Ethel Rosenberg will be executed at 10 p. m. (EST) June 18.

Carroll said the date and time were determined after a conference between him and Warden Wilfred Denno at Sing Sing prison yesterday.

Federal Judge Irvin R. Kaufman, setting an execution date last Friday for the fourth time, ordered sentence to be carried out the week of June 15.

Change Made in Time of Bible School

The Vacation Bible School scheduled from 8:30 to 10 a. m. through June 12 at Hope Gospel Tabernacle has been changed to 7:45 to 9:30 p. m. More adults will be able to attend and the special lighting will be more effective at night.

Miss Vivian Allen of San Bernardino, California who will be conducting this Children's Revival will be working with large flannelboards and felt figures. These figures and scenes are painted with fluorescent colors, using different lights, ultraviolet and black-ray etc., the scenes come to life and new scenes and figures appear as if by "magic," making the glorious Bible stories exciting and real. This is something new and different and adults as well as children will enjoy these special services.

There will be songs, contests and prizes besides the beautiful magic lights.

The public is invited to attend these services.

Italian law forbids a child to be named after its parent.

Elizabeth II Becomes 7th Woman Monarch of the British Empire

Threat to Cut Off UN Funds Withdrawn

By JOHN L. STEELE

WASHINGTON, (UP) — President Eisenhower won from Republican congressional leaders today a pledge to withdraw a legislative proposal to cut off American funds for the United Nations if Red China is admitted to the U. N.

Instead, senate GOP leaders agreed to back a substitute stating simply that the United States not only will oppose, but will take active leadership in the fight against any effort to bring Communist China into the U. N. They said Mr. Eisenhower agreed to this.

The GOP leaders also left the White House satisfied that this country will not for any reason consider admission of Red China to the U. N. a condition to a Korean truce or peace settlement.

The President summoned the House and Senate leaders to the White House and Senate leaders to a Special White House conference shortly before noon in the face of a building controversy over a proposed rider to the State Department appropriation which would withhold U. S. contributions to the U. N. if Red China came into the organizations.

Britishers Reach Top of Mt. Everest

LONDON (AP) — Queen Elizabeth I took time out on her Coronation Day today to send congratulations to the British expedition that planned the Union Jack atop 29,002-foot Mt. Everest.

The feat — man's first successful attempt to scale the world's highest peak—was announced last night by Buckingham Palace.

The news that two climbers in a party headed by Col. John Hunt had successfully battled their way to the icy summit in the Himalayas on May 29 was relayed to the Queen first. A palace spokesman described the dramatic news as a "coronation gift."

In her message, cabled to the British minister at Kathmandu, the capital of the Himalayan kingdom of Nepal, the Queen said:

"Please convey to Col. Hunt and all members of the British expedition my warmest congratulations on their great achievement in reaching the summit of Mt. Everest, signed Elizabeth II."

The Queen's husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, also sent his congratulations.

A message from Hunt relayed to Buckingham Palace said "All is well."

The final assault on the Central Asian peak on the Nepal-Tibet border — reportedly the third attempt by Hunt's 15-man expedition within the last few weeks—was made by a New Zealand housekeeper, Edward P. Hillary, 34, and a veteran guide of Nepal's Shorpa tribe, 39-year-old Bhutia Tensing.

All Around the Town

By The Star Staff

Will history repeat in Hempstead this year? We certainly hope it doesn't because if you remember the county had no rainfall whatever in June 1952, nor in September for that matter and very little in between. . . . Already this year's total rainfall is 27.67 as compared to 23.09 during 1952; May this year saw 9.43 inches of rain while last year the county only got 5.98 inches. . . . so far all signs point to another dry month but the farmers need it for the present.

The businessmen of Hope will visit Kilpsch and Assoc., in the Proving Ground Wednesday p. m., another of tours of local industries. . . . the group will meet at 2 p. m. at the C of C office and Wednesday morning is the weekly breakfast for merchants.

Windsor Sees Coronation, Fights Tears

By J. J. MEEHAN

PARIS (U) — The Duke of Windsor fought back tears in a darkened room today and prayed silently beside his duchess for his 27-year-old niece, Queen Elizabeth II, as she was presented in Westminster Abbey with the crown he renounced for love.

Like millions of other Britons, unable to attend the glittering ceremony, the duke and his American bride of 16 years ago saw the coronation on television in the company of friends at a quiet party honoring the queen.

Occasionally the duke broke in on the televised voices to explain in a husky voice some intricate detail of colorful regalia ceremonies he last saw in 1911 when, as a boy, he was smuggled with his brother "Bertie" (the late King George VI) into the coronation of their father, King George V.

"A lot of water has passed under the bridge in these 5 years," he said. "A lot of water, including two world wars."

The duke sat beside the duchess at the Paris home of American heiress Margaret Biddle. The duke, smoking cigarette after cigarette started forward when the bulldog face of Prime Minister Winston Churchill flickered on the screen. And he smiled happily at the French announcer's commentary on the man who befriended the duke in the abdication crisis.

Millions Fill London for Coronation

By The Associated Press

LONDON — Britain crowned Elizabeth II today in a magnificent spectacle of ancient pomp and pageantry, before the wondering eyes of her little son, Charles, heir to the throne.

The thunder of guns and the pealing of bells proclaimed to millions massed in London's streets the formal accession of Elizabeth the Queen, the first coronation of a woman since Victoria, 138 years ago. She is the seventh woman Monarch of England.

Crowds massed 25 to 35 deep acclaimed the Queen going from Buckingham Palace to Westminster Abbey, and coming home again. Only 7,500 persons were in the abbey, but millions more could see the 2½ hour ceremony by television, for the first time.

Cries of "God Save the Queen" blended into a mighty roar from thousands of throats as the Queen's purple and golden coach left the abbey for the main coronation procession, five miles and more through the center of the old capital.

The 27-year-old Queen, who had looked down near the close of the long Abbey ritual—and once near tears—flashed her smile. The Duke of Edinburgh was beside her.

There was a deluge of rain as the main procession got underway. The inside of the Queen's motor coach was lit by newly installed "fluorescent" lighting. Newly gleamed on her coronet and jewelry, wind-blown rain and brilliant sunshine completed with each other for control of the day. But the millions who had gathered to cheer the queen stood firm in sites some had staked out 48 hours ahead of time.

The sun burst through lowering skies when Elizabeth was presented to the congregation inside the abbey as "your undoubted Queen." A cloudburst drenched the jam-packed capital at the moment of crowning. It rained steadily for 90 minutes, stopping only a few minutes before the consecration service ended. More than 300 persons were counted casualties in the crush of crowds, with 25 hurt seriously enough to go to hospitals.

Prince Charles, who is four, was brought to the abbey just before the Archbishop of Canterbury placed the jewel-encrusted crown of St. Edward upon the head of Britain's seventh Queen, symbolically consecrating her to God and to the service of more than a half billion people in a quarter of the earth.

Charles acted like any bright four-year-old. Sucking his thumb, he gazed with awe upon the spectacle centering about his blue-eyed young mother. So he could see better, his softly weeping grandmother, Queen Mother Elizabeth, lifted him so his chubby hands could grasp the ledge of the royal gallery.

The boy destined to be King saw the crown placed on his mother's head at 12:33 p. m. (5:33 a. m. CST). Eight minutes later he saw her solemnly mount the gilded throne before the altar, and he was startled by the swelling roar of "God Save the Queen," echoing through the ancient abbey. In the united voice of 7,500 assembled dignitaries.

Elizabeth II Regina sat in solemn splendor, the scepters of authority in her hands, her head bowed beneath the weight of the five-pound crown, while outside trumpets, bells and guns carried the tidings.

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS

CHICAGO, Ill. — Most grains finished with small advances on the Board of Trade today but a late sell-off wiped out gains in wheat.

Wheat had been ahead with other cereals until the last 10 minutes when selling expanded and put prices fractionally down for the day. Brokers thought most of the support for the market came from short covering.

Prospect of export sales of wheat to West Germany next week added that cereal. Light cash grain receipts and further declines in local supplies helped corn.

Wheat closed unchanged to 1/2 lower, July 8.02 1/2-2.02, corn 5.20 1/2-1 1/2 higher, July 5.54 1/2-1 1/2, oats 1/2 lower to 1/4 higher, July 69-69 1/2, rye 1/2 higher to 1/2 higher, July 51.30-1.30 1/2, soybeans 1/2 to 1 cent higher, July 22.80 1/2.

NEW YORK STOCKS

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Railroad shares improved in the Stock Market today but most industrial stocks were fractionally lower.

Trading was fairly active.

Nearly all stocks were lower in early trading, with some losses of about one point. However, the railroads soon began to edge upward and some industrial shares followed. Steel stocks were among those advancing rationally.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Cotton futures were irregular today in slow dealings. Nearby deliveries sagged on liquidation and then recovered as mills and New Orleans found offerings limited. Some selling in later months was influenced by the back at the hands of Monroe because league leading Meridian also was taking it on the chin from El Dorado, 63. But the tragic thing was the loss of third baseman McNeill Smith, who suffered a broken right arm when hit by Monroe right-hander Hugh Blanton. Smith was hitting .329 and was a sparkplug in the Judges infield. He is expected to be out of action six weeks.

Next 10 Days May Decide Fate of Braves

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Just how good are Milwaukee's amazing Braves.

The next 10 days may supply a definite answer. Charlie Grimm's second-place team is at Ebbets Field tonight starting a three-game series with the Brooklyn Dodgers. Then comes a four-game series in Philadelphia followed by another four-game set in New York.

By that time, the rest of the league should know whether the Braves are to be taken seriously. Despite their lousy perch, there are still some rival managers who insist the Braves are playing over their heads and will drop back among the second-divisions when the weather gets hot and the going gets rougher.

1. Grimm, the jovial skipper of the Braves, dissent naturally.

"We're up there to stay," he says. "Our pitching has been great, our infield has been tight and our hitters have begun to find the range. From what I've seen, thus far, we're as good as any team in the league."

Certainly the Braves have been the surprise of the league. With six weeks of the season gone they are only a half game behind the league-leading Dodgers. All teams enjoyed an off day yesterday. A victory tonight would put the Braves on top.

A good part of the explanation lies in the slugging of sophomore third baseman Eddie Mathews (.331 batting average, 14 homers and 37 runs batted in), the resurgence of shortstop Johnny Logan, the fine showing of rookie pitchers Don Liddle and Bob Buhl and outfielder Bill Burton, and the return from service of batteryman Johnny Antonelli and Del Crandall.

The Boston Red Sox, surprise of the American League, face their annual test. Can they prove successful on the road? They open a 14-game Western tour in Cleveland tonight. A double loss in Washington Sunday dropped them out of the first division.

If the Yankees are going to be overhauled, it will have to be on the road. The world champions have won 17 of their 11 home engagements. They open a 14-game tour of the West with a game in Chicago tonight. The White Sox and Indians, who will be at home during the next two weeks, have a 4 1/2-game deficit to make up.

In the National, Brooklyn, Philadelphia and New York among the contenders, will be at home during the next fortnight. The St. Louis Cardinals and Braves will be on the road, not to return home until June 16. It should be an interesting two weeks all around.

Huddleston to Hurl Against Tomics Tonight

Reeder Huddleston, veteran left-hander, will be the starting pitcher for Hope Legionnaires in tonight's game at Fair Park with the Red River Tomics. Starting time is eight o'clock.

Huddleston is reported to be in top form and this will be his second game in Southwest Arkansas League competition this year. In the league opener a week ago he coasted to an 18-6 victory over the Nashville White Sox. He has just completed a full season's play in the AIC and Sunday was named to the 2nd All-State AIC team.

This will be the seasons first appearance in Hope for the Texarkana Tomics. The Tomics are the civilian entry in the league from the mammoth Red River Arsenal at Texarkana.

Fish Contest Winners Are Announced

A seven-week fishing contest sponsored by KNAR closed Sunday afternoon and winners of the $300 in prizes will receive their awards at 10 a.m. June 4, at Monts Service Station.

Cruise with Death

Copyright, 1952, by Rinehart & Company, Inc. Distributed by King Features Syndicate

CHAPTER TWENTY

ROBERT squared my hand, which might have meant anything. "Come on, old girl. Get your nerve back. We've been in tighter spots than this." He hesitated for a moment, then reached inside his blouse and brought out a small revolver no larger than his hand. "Take this. God knows I need it, but perhaps you need it more. It will make you feel better, anyway."

"I didn't know you had it," I said weakly.

"Never without it," Robert answered.

He stepped back quickly and went out, closing the door behind him. I braced myself against the wall, holding the little gun in one hand, clinging to the rope with the other. From the sofa Charlotte looked at me and grinned—a wide, malicious, feral smile.

It was Brown who told me, later in the day, of the extraordinary conversation he had with Randolph in the captain's cabin. He was still full of it, so I suppose he reported it accurately, although perhaps he gave himself a shade more nobility than he was entitled to. I put his story in here because that is where it belongs, chronologically.

It seems that during the very worst of the storm Hezekiah clambered into the captain's cabin.

The floor of the cabin was awash. The doctor had hung himself on the bunk to keep his patient from rolling out of it. Brown was hanging on to the table, the captain rolled his head and groaned.

"He is beginning to rouse, but there is danger of concussion and it is unwise to hurry him."

Hezekiah swept off his sodden cap and flung it on the floor. "We'll go to the bottom if you don't!" he shrieked.

Brown—to hear him tell it—cast the deciding vote. "You had better do something," and the doctor rescued for his black bag.

While he was preparing a hypodermic, the door of the cabin burst open and the wind rushing in, followed by a sailor wearing a life jacket, and gray with fright. He spoke in the singsong of Jamaica.

Hezekiah merely groaned, and Brown was, by his account, the only one calm enough to answer. "Do you mean to say you have been sending messages until just now?"

The Jamaican was (and I quote) relieved to speak to someone of authority. "Yes, sah. We sending SOS this one hounh, sah. But we got no answer in this storm, sah."

So the Captain had been lying about the radio all along. Brown and the doctor exchanged looks. They had been enemies, but this emergency found them on the same side of the fence. They would be obliged to pull together. The doctor asked Brown to help him massage the Captain's hands and feet.

They did so and after awhile the Captain groaned, opened his eyes for a moment, and closed them without showing recognition. Randolph slapped him snarlingly on the stubby cheek, and dodged back out for reach. The little black eyes opened again, and there was anger in them.

"What's gain' on here?" Jonas asked feebly.

Randolph hit him again.

That brought him up like a steel spring, just as the Spiritus gave another of her long sickening rolls, and hung at the end of it with the wall and floor a V-shaped trough into which everything loose clattered. The Captain took the situation in, and tried to stand up, but couldn't make it.

"Give me a hand here, Hez," he bellowed in something like his old voice. "My legs are no good, seein'ly. You've taken a mighty time to call me."

He had himself half carried out of the room, between Hezekiah and the sailor, Brown and Randolph got the door shut again. They made no effort to leave. They were as well off there as anywhere.

Brown thought, he told me, that in common decency he ought to ask a question. "Will Jonas be all right?"

Randolph just shrugged. "Will any of us?"

They went on sitting there, disliking each other more and more.

Then Randolph reached under the Captain's berth, pulled out the life preserver and put it on. Brown felt obliged to disapprove. "Jonas might need that."

"I need it more. After all it is his business to go down with the ship."

"You always think of yourself first, don't you?"

"Most people do. The difference is that I admit it."

Brown said he couldn't take any more. He went ahead and expressed his opinion of psychiatrists in general—which was low. "You never give anyone credit for a noble motive."

Randolph gave a kind of barking laugh. "You just hate us because we see through you."

Brown sneered.

"You have failed to mature, Randolph. You have proved yourself incapable of learning from experience. Your goddess wasn't worth your sacrifice in the first place, and she isn't now. You had to defy her to excuse yourself for unprofessional conduct. But she was too much of a snob to marry you. And that is a worse sort of immaturity still."

Randolph went on to remark that most of the passengers were studies in immaturity—almost clinical. He would be interested to watch our behavior under tension, for of course everyone had a breaking point—it was only a question of arriving at it. He tickled us off to the accompaniment, I gather, of growls from Brown.

Larry was as inarticulate as a baby, Gay as unable to connect cause and effect as a child. Charlotte's diffuse sexuality marked her as having stuck in adolescence. Robert he was not sure about, but thought he was probably too much impressed by his ancestors, unable in a spiritual sense to cut the umbilical tie. He was good enough to say that I was too normal to be interesting.

Brown asked him if it didn't make him lonely to be such a superior of humanity, to have reasoned away every decent emotion. "Remember Nietzsche, the man who tried to go too far alone, and went mad instead."

"I'll stop short of that," Randolph assured him.
